Q: Prove by induction that  $n^2+n+1 \leq 3n$  for all  $n \geq 1$ .
Question: Prove by induction that  $n^2+n+1 \leq 3n$  for all  $n \geq 1$ .
This question seems to confuse me since  $1$  is obviously an integer.
My work: Base case  $n=1$ :
 $1^2+1+1=2 \leq 3(1)$ . Inductive step: Let  $P(n)$  be the statement that  $n^2+n+1 \leq 3n$  for all  $n \geq 1$ . I assume this statement is true for  $n=1$  and  $n=2$ , and I want to prove  $P(n+1)$ . Consider:
 $n+1^2+n+1 = \underbrace{(n+1)^2}_{=n^2+2n} + n+1 \leq \underbrace{\phantom{3(n^2+2n)+1}}_{=3n} + 1 = \phantom{3(n^2+2n)+1}$

$\underbrace{3(n+1)n}_{=3(n+1)}$
$. Does this count as a successful inductive step? Did I make any mistakes in my work? A: You are correct, your proof is fine.

However, a more rigorous (and, I think, prettier) way to do this is by writing  $3(n+1) = (n+1)^2 + n + 1 + 2$  and adding both sides of the equality  $3(n+1) = 3n$  to the left-hand side of the inequality we want to prove. You'll get, after a few iterations,  $n^2 + n + 1 + 2 \leq 3n + 2$ . Now, dividing both sides by 2, and subtracting 1 from both sides, we get  $n^2 + n + \frac{1}{2} + \frac{1}{2} \leq 3n - \frac{1}{2}$ .

The epidemiology of meningococcal disease in children and adults in the United Kingdom. Meningococcal disease is a frequent cause of morbidity and mortality in young children, but is very rare in adults. We present an analysis of the meningococcal disease caseloads in children and adults in England and Wales to ascertain whether the age profile has changed. We used information gathered from the National Notification and Enquiry Service. From 1980 to 2008, there were 851 cases of meningococcal disease in children and 62 in adults, a decrease of 37 per cent in the former and a decrease of 73 per cent in the latter.

Meningococcal disease was contracted in 51 per cent of adults (first-time sufferers) and in 98.5 per cent of children (recipients of a baby type A, C or W immunization in the first year of life).

Meningococcal disease has become less common in childhood and more common in adults, possibly reflecting the emergence of non-group B meningococci and the universal infant immunization with the A, C and W components of the vaccine. ❖ “In my case, luckily, there is a lot of music written by composers outside Germany. There is some music of Emil von Reznicek and others. “ “In Germany, there are some composers who did their music after the war.” “I don’t know much about them.” “For the music critic, who has to write an article about the opera, maybe that’s not something you can be interested in.” “I don’t know about the music critic. I am more interested about the musicians. In my mind, I am interested in the young musicians and the young composers and the old, where are they, what did they do?" "So, you don't know a lot about it?" "I am interested in social history and into the past." He is looking at the works. "It is interesting for me, because I had the opportunity to have a close relationship with this composer, which is good for me." "Did you know the composer personally?" "I knew
